U.S. Supreme Court Justice Stephen Breyer
To Speak at Clinton School Public Forum

LITTLE ROCK – U.S. Supreme Court Justice Stephen Breyer will speak at a public forum March 7 at the Clinton Library sponsored by the University of Arkansas Clinton School of Public Service and the University of Arkansas at Little Rock William H. Bowen School of Law.

The event, which is free and open to the public on a first come, first served basis, will be at 6:30 p.m. in the Great Hall at the Clinton Library. Doors open at 5:45 p.m. For more information, call 683-5200.

Wordsworth Books & Co. will have copies of Breyer's book, "Active Liberty: Interpreting Our Democratic Constitution," available at the public forum for an informal book signing.

"Of the nine members of the U.S. Supreme Court, there's none more respected than Justice Stephen Breyer," said Clinton School Founding Dean David Pryor. "He is a thinker and a true leader in helping shape the court's current philosophy. Dean Goldner and I are very pleased to welcome Justice Breyer to the Clinton School of Public Service campus on behalf of our school and the William H. Bowen Law School at UALR."

The following day Breyer will speak to the Clinton School inaugural class, then address law students and faculty at the UALR Bowen Law School.

Breyer was appointed to the court in 1994 by President Clinton. Breyer, born in San Francisco in 1938, is a graduate of Stanford, Oxford, and Harvard Law School. He taught law for many years as a professor at Harvard Law School and at the Kennedy School of Government. He has also worked as a Supreme Court law clerk (for Justice Arthur Goldberg), a Justice Department lawyer (antitrust division), an Assistant Watergate Special Prosecutor, and Chief Counsel of the Senate Judiciary Committee. In 1980 he was appointed to the United States Court of Appeals for the First Circuit by President Carter, becoming Chief Judge in 1990.

He has written books and articles about administrative law, economic regulation, and the Constitution. His wife Joanna, a British citizen, is a clinical psychologist. They have three children (Chloe, Nell, and Michael) and two grandchildren.

The Clinton School offers a Master of Public Service degree with a curriculum that includes conflict transformation, communication strategies, principles of global leadership, legal and ethical dimensions of public service, and social change. Students will complete public service field experiences in Arkansas and around the globe and will design and implement an individual public service initiative.

The Clinton School of Public Service is a component of the University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences, the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville and the University of Arkansas at Little Rock.
